

NEW STRIKE

Inaugurated by Butchers' Union In Dozen Cities Today

President Donnelly Charges Rankest Kind of Discrimination

General Strike is Ordered and the Union Headquarters In Eleven Other Cities Notified from Chicago-- Workers Turned Away This Morning.

Chicago, July 22.—The big stock yards strike is on again. A general strike has been ordered. The butchers struck again today when on reporting for work in accordance with the peace agreement the packers' agents offered work to only a few of their number. President Donnelly, leader of the butcher workmen, charges that the packers have been guilty of the "rankest kind of discrimination." He asserts that a general strike of every packing trade in the country must result. In every department, at every plant, workers were turned away by the thousands with the claim that work would be given them later. A new general strike order to the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen's unions of North America was announced today by President Donnelly. Shortly after 8 o'clock it was telegraphed to union headquarters in eleven other cities.

Donnelly declares that the order will be upheld by the American Federation of Labor, which includes the entire union labor movement of the United States. When the butchers, numbering 12,000 men, struck again today, they marched down Packers avenue in the yards. Disorder broke out at once, the throng receiving the striking butchers with cheers.

President Donnelly, leader of the 22,000 butcher workmen who had been on a strike hurried to headquarters.

"This means a general strike," he said, "and it means a general strike all over the country."

"The packers have clearly violated their agreement. These same tactics are being used this morning all over the country. Our unions ratified the agreement on the belief that the packers would stand by the clause that all men would be put back to work. Our men will all refuse to work. You cannot make this statement too strong. The packers have violated their word. Superintendents came among our men and picked out those few who were known not to be union leaders. They turned down all who were known to be union leaders. It is the rankest kind of discrimination."

PACKERS' STATEMENT.

Chicago, July 22.—To consider the new developments in the strike situation, representatives of the packers went into executive session at 10:30 o'clock.

One of the packers' representatives stated that this morning's strike was a hasty affair and showed lack of judgment. The packers, he said, could resume operations only gradually and consequently needed but few of the men to start with. There was not enough stock on hand, he claimed, to permit of a full operation of the plants.

Three hundred city policemen and 200 private watchmen resumed guard of the plants and the yards shortly after the second walk-out of the butchers and helpers.

The receipts at the yards this morning were quite heavy, 8,000 cattle, 28,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep.

At 11 o'clock today the packers' consultation ended and the following statement was given out:

"Much to our surprise, the men after reporting for work this morning and after getting started in nearly all the houses were ordered out again. We thought the officers of the organization thoroughly understood that the business had been more or less disrupted during the strike and that some days would be required to get started up in anything like old capacity."

"It is the intention of the packers to carry out their agreement in every particular and if any house has given cause for grievance, the same can be of the grand lodge, B. P. G. E., ended at 12:25 this morning and adjourned after installing 25 officers. The com-

DONNELLY'S TELEGRAM.

St Louis, Mo. July 22.—The following telegram was received this morning by Business Manager Moran, of the East St. Louis striking butchers, from President Donnelly:

"Packing companies have already violated agreement by discriminating against our members. Order strike again immediately in all departments. Keep men orderly. Wire answer immediately."

In compliance with the above instructions Moran declared the strike still on and called out every member of the union who had reported for duty at the several packing houses Friday. The men at work marched from the packing houses immediately. Plants still at work with some forces they had during the strike. The strikers will hold a meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon to form a plan of action.

AT OMAHA.

Omaha, July 22.—Immediately upon receipt of Donnelly's order this morning Vice President Vail ordered a renewal of the strike. Vail stated 2,000 men would be out at noon. It is probable that the mechanical craftsmen will go out now.

ORDERLY AT ST. PAUL.

St Paul, Minn., July 22.—At 10 o'clock the men are walking out at Swift & Co.'s South St. Paul plant. There is no disorder.

Elks Convention.

Cincinnati, O., July 22.—The session of the grand lodge, B. P. G. E., ended at 12:25 this morning and adjourned after installing 25 officers. The committee on law submitted a number of interesting problems at the night session. The system of voting in the grand lodge was changed to make it less tedious and cumbersome and to obviate any trouble that might arise over members voting who have no right to do so. The changes made in the ritual were all of minor importance, it is said. They only simplify matters.

Grand Exalted Ruler O'Brien of Baltimore, made a few impromptu remarks before adjournment.

CORTELYOU IS SNUBBED

La Follette Faction Refuse to Let Him Patch Up Peace in Wisconsin.

Madison, July 22.—There is absolutely no chance of Republican peace in this state. The last glimmer of hope flickered out yesterday when Chairman Connor, of the La Follette faction, in no gentle terms, refused to permit National Chairman Cortelyou to try to patch up even a semblance of a peace between the governor's wing of the party and the stalwarts.

Chairman Connor learned that Cortelyou intended to meddle with the trouble in this state in an endeavor to adjust the factional differences, which everyone expects to give Wisconsin to the Democrats, and said:

"It has been very noticeable in the politics of Wisconsin that the Republicans (La Follette faction) have fought their own battles out in their own way.

We have always stood pat with the best hand in the deck at our disposal, and we are not now, at the eleventh hour, appealing to anybody, nor will we appeal to any one, except the good people of Wisconsin, who will settle the trouble much more satisfactorily than any court decision.

Chairman Connor's words about a court decision refer to an announcement made by Chairman Goldin, of the stalwarts, that the supreme court will be petitioned to decide the regularity of one of the two state tickets in the field. Connor says that even if the supreme court decides in favor of the stalwarts, the La Follette ticket will not be withdrawn.

Are Relations Between U. S. and Turkey Berlin Paper Says Today.

Berlin, July 22.—The Lokal Anzeiger reports that the relations between Turkey and America have become strained and that the situation is critical. The Turkish authorities, the paper says, have forcibly prevented Theodore H. Norton, American consul at Kharput, from journeying to Sarsau to investigate the Armenian outrages reported there. The Porte, the paper adds, has refused to give a written acknowledgement of her debt to America. All other powers possess such written acknowledgements. Developments are expected.

OPERATORS WILL FIGHT

Great Strike Is Sure to Be Begun Monday in Cotton Mills.

Fall River, Mass., July 22.—The prevailing feeling among the cotton mill operatives who last night voted to strike on Monday next rather than submit to a 12 1/2 per cent reduction in wages is more bitter today than at any time since the announcement of the mill owners.

The meeting of the latter yesterday and their attitude are accepted as a challenge by the operators, and what little hope they may have had that the intention to cut wages might be reconsidered has now disappeared and in its place there remains a determination to fight the matter to the bitter end.

Geo. Gee Hanged.

Woostock, N. B., July 22.—Geo. Gee, for the murder of his cousin, Milly Gee, was hanged here early this morning.

PACKING HOUSE FIRE.

Portland, Me., July 22.—Fire last night destroyed the packing establishment of the Twitchell-Champlin company.

New York, July 22.—Mrs. Henry George, widow of the noted single tax advocate, is dead at her home at Merriwold Park.

ELECTROCUTION WAS A SUCCESS.

At the Last Moment Stimmel Said "Take This Thing Off; I Have Something to Say."

Columbus, July 22.—"Mis; the curses of a dying man rest upon Judge Kumler, Prosecuting Attorney Martin and ex-Prosecutor Kumler. They convicted me wrongfully. I never killed nobody."

These words came in a harsh grating voice from Charles Stimmel a moment before he was electrocuted early this morning at the penitentiary for the murder of Joseph W. Shide a dayton bookkeeper, nearly two years ago.

After the death mask had been put in place, he was heard to mutter: "Go ahead with your dirty job!" Then the current was turned on at 12:02 a. m.

A convulsion shook his frame.

After a minute, the current was turned off. At 12:08 the man was pronounced dead.

Though asserting his innocence, Stimmel received little sympathy from the 67 persons crowded into the death chamber. He had been led from the annex by Deput. Wood. The charlain stood in the rear of the spectators.

The electrocution was successful from every scientific standpoint.

"Contrary to the habit of annex prisoners, Stimmel refused courtesies which I offered him, and when asked if he wanted anything to eat, he reacted to the head. Stimmel requested that it be removed, saying he had a Stimmel shook hands as coolly as if his father had been a stranger on the street, and simply said goodbye.

SCROFULA

Swollen glands, tumors, whitewelling, sores, pustular or scaly skin eruptions, flabby muscles, brittle bones, weak digestion, emaciated, ill-nourished bodies, are some of the well-known earmarks of Scrofula. Scrofula is inherited. Parents too closely related by the ties of blood, or tainted with consumption or blood poison, may look for signs of Scrofula in their children. The middle-aged often have it, but children are the chief sufferers. Scrofula breaks down the vital forces, and the blood becomes so weak and poor that it does not nourish the body. The remedy in all scrofulous affections must be one that purifies the diseased blood, builds up the weak digestion, increases the appetite and gives new energy and strength to the life forces. No medicine has won so much fame as a blood purifier as S. S. S., and its tonic effects upon the system are not equalled by any other remedy. It makes the weak, tainted blood rich and strong, and drives out of the circulation all tubercular deposits and morbid matter that cause the glandular swelling, sores, abscesses, tumors and other horrible symptoms that make Scrofula so dreaded and dangerous.

THE BRIGADIER'S REVENGE

[Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis.]

The brigadier general was a great poker player, and he had been cleaning out the colonels and majors and captains in great shape. Some of them were old hands at the game, but for every dollar they won they lost two. It wouldn't do to come out and say that the brigadier was a card sharp, but men shook their heads and wondered and grumbled over his strange luck, and one after another found excuses for not sitting down with him again.

Inside of a week or so it was reported and believed Colonel Bell lost to the brigadier over $2,000. That sum might have been doubled in another week but for an incident. More by accident than design the colonel caught the brigadier cheating, and the play broke up in hot words. Every effort was made to suppress the gossip, but it reached the ears of the commander in chief, and he raised such a row that there was no more poker. The harm had been done, however. Colonel Bell had said to the brigadier in presence of witnesses:

"Sir, I caught you cheating, and I denounce you as a sharper and a rascal!"

And the brigadier, hot faced, chagrined and cursing his own carelessness, had replied:

"I'll make those words cost you your life or your commission before three months have passed by."

Spring came at last, and the campaign opened. Early was too strong for Sheridan for the first two or three months, but we held him back and fought him in all the valleys. Sometimes it was a skirmish, with only a few hundred men engaged. Again it was a lively little fight in which each side had a brigade in battle line. We had plenty of excitement and plenty to occupy our thoughts, but we of the Third regiment did not forget the brigadier's threat. You had only to look at his set jaw and cold face to realize that his enmity was deep.

Later our brigade was pushed over into the Luray valley to capture a small force and wreak destruction on growing crops. The Confederates were alert and could not be taken by surprise. As we fought them in a desultory way they were re-enforced, and suddenly we found our 3,600 men facing at least 5,000. The enemy had a strong position, too, and every man of us, from the senior colonel down, realized that if we could even hold our own until another Federal brigade came up we should be in luck.

"We'll fight, of course," I heard our captain saying to the first lieutenant, "but we'll get licked out of our boots inside of half an hour. If we had double our strength we couldn't carry their position. It's going to be a useless slaughter."

And the second sergeant of the company turned to the first corporal and growled:

"Say, now, but have you got a family back home?"

"Yes, and what of it?"

"Nothing, except that you'd better bid them goodby and ask the Lord to forgive you your sins. We'll be piled up in front of 'em like cordwood."

The brigadier had a plan, and it was soon developed. The Third regiment was on the left flank, just opposite the enemy's strongest position. The center of the Federal force was moved forward and then ordered back. The right flank was advanced, kept under long range fire for a few minutes and then withdrawn back. Then an aid came galloping up to Colonel Bell, saluted and said:

"Compliments of General Blank and you will move forward and turn the enemy's right. Let your men go in with the bayonet."

"The Third to move forward alone," gasped Colonel Bell in astonishment.

"Alone and at once."

"But it cannot—cannot!"

"Alone and at once, sir," repeated the aid.

Not five men in our regiment heard the words, but all understood them. The hour of revenge had come to the brigadier. He hadn't driven Colonel Bell to resign, but he would strike him here, and the blow would hit the whole regiment as well. There were groans and jeers from the men, and the officers shook hands and said:

"Goodby to you. This is a wretched old Third."

common time, increased to quick as the first bullets began to sing, and then with a cheer brought our muskets down to a charge and dashed forward with a whoop. The angels of heaven must have been saddened over the slaughter. We had no earthly show. Grape and canister and bullet rained into us behind intrenchments until the men in gray stayed their hands out of pity and let a beggarly quarter of the regiment limp back out of the hell. The colonel, the major, five captains, seven lieutenants and 420 men left back there!

As the fragments of us got together and wondered how God had spared us the brigadier rode along our front at a gallop.

"You murderer!" shouted a hundred men at him as he rode.

"You cursed fiend!" shouted another hundred.

But the brigadier smiled and rode on. In his official report he would say:

"The Third regiment was sent in on the left flank, but not being properly led or held up to their work accomplished nothing and suffered a heavy loss. I am sorry to say that among the killed was the gallant Colonel Bell, who had heretofore displayed the greatest judgment and gallantry."

BITS ABOUT BACHELORS.

It does not follow that a bachelor is a woman hater. He may be merely a self lover.

Some are bachelors because they loved too well, others because they loved too many.

He who stays single because he was once refused may not be heartbroken. He may be merely lazy.

CORE THAT BIRDS WILL NOT BOTHER.

A well known farmer says he wets his seed corn with coal oil before planting it, and as a result the birds and insects do not bother it before it comes up. The oil does not injure the germs and keep it from sprouting, says the Fillmore (Mo.) Leader. This has been proved by experience, as he has never had to replant.

kept his face turned away and threw the words over his shoulder.

"Married! Wow! That's a very radical remedy. It might be worse than the other trouble. How many books are there in the library?"

"Two or three million, I believe. Oh, no! You wouldn't find it so, I'm sure. Think of growing into a spectacle old maid! All college girls do, you know. Then think of that young fellow just longing to make a home for you!"

"What building is that?"

"That? Oh, the patent office or the pension office or something! Think of!"

"But suppose the girl has sent him away?"

"Then let her whistle him back and see whether he won't come."

The girl glanced at the broad back of the man before her, while her shoulders quivered with silent mirth. Then she puckered up her lips and deliberately emitted a clear, soft whistle.

The effect was magical. Instantly the chauffeur swung around in his seat and faced her. "Bessie!" he exclaimed, "do you mean it?"

The girl smiled at him, though her eyes were dewy. "Of course I do, Frank," she said. "I never thought you would go away as you did just for a word. No! No! Keep your seat. You can say all that's really necessary from where you are."

"And you knew me all the time?"

"Of course! The minute I really looked at you. But you'll make me miss my train."

"Train? No train for you! I'll not take any chances now. Your interest in the city may have lapsed, but here's the city hall. Shall I go in and get a marriage license, or—will you go in with me?"

The man looked doubtfully at the machine indicated. "Don't think so, miss," he answered. "That's a private machine or I miss my guess. Still, I'll ask." Leaving the girl he walked over to the curb, and addressed the young man sitting on the box of a handsome automobile.

No one familiar with the new horseless vehicles would for one moment have supposed that the one in question was for hire. "Racer" appeared in every line of its build and costliness in the exquisite nicely of its construction. But the girl was from the west and had never had an opportunity to study the makes of machines, while the chauffeur hoped that by apparent desire to serve he might yet gain the hire he had lost by the breaking down of his own machine.

He had sprung from the seat and stood holding out his hands, the light of love pleading in his eyes. "Won't you go in with me, Bessie?" he asked again.

For an instant the girl hesitated; then she took the proffered hand. "Yes, Frank," she said softly. "I will go with you—now and always."

"Bless that old gasoline rattletrap that broke down with you," he cried. "It must have been one of Cupid's up to date chariots in disguise."

Table Manners In Argentina.

"We encamped near a swamp," says a gentleman, describing a meal he had several years ago with some cart drivers in South America, "and supped on sliced pumpkins boiled with bits of meat and seasoned with salt. The meal was served in genuine pampa fashion. One iron spoon and two cow's horns split in halves were passed around the group, the members of which squatted upon their haunches and freely helped themselves from the kettle. Even in this most uncivilized form of satisfying hunger there is a peculiar etiquette which the most lowly person invariably observes. Each member of the company in turn dips his spoon or horn into the center of the stew and draws it in a direct line toward him, never allowing it to deviate to the right or left. By observing this rule each person eats without interfering with his neighbor. Being ignorant of this custom, I dipped my horn into the mess at random and fished about for some of the nice bits. My companions regarded this horrid breach of politeness with scowls of impatience. They declared with some warmth to the cook that foreigners did not know how to eat. I apologized as well as I could and endeavored thereafter to eat according to gaucho etiquette."

THOSE QUEER WOMEN.

"Women are mighty queer about some things," remarked a conductor the other day. "I've been watching them for ten years on this line, and every day I see some new peculiarity. You just watch the next one that gets in. There's one vacant seat left, and she'll walk up to it and turn clear around in her tracks before she sits down. Here comes one now."

Sure enough, the woman who stepped on the car just then spied the empty seat, made for it and, reaching it, turned clear around before she sat down.

"You see how it is," continued the conductor, returning after taking her fare. "They all do it. There isn't one woman in ten but what turns around before she takes her seat. Perhaps it's natural for 'em, just as it is for a dog to whirl around three times before he lies down. I've seen more than one woman lose her seat by having some one else slip into it while she was going through her preliminary turn. But a little lesson like that doesn't do them any good. They keep on turning around before taking a seat just the same."—Exchange.

"Yes'm, I'll get you there in time. Going east, ma'men?"

Again the girl looked at him curiously. "Yes," she answered slowly. "I'm on my way to college."

"Oh—er—you believe in the higher education of women then?"

The girl's eyes were dancing with fun now. "Under certain circumstances," she said. "Is that the capitol?"

"Yes'm, that's the capitol. Under certain circumstances? What circumstances, for instance?"

"Oh, a stepmother at home, for instance. How many senators are there?"

"Three hundred and eighty-six, I believe. A stepmother might be a terror to some girls, of course, but most of them can get away from one home to another without going to college."

"How? By the way, is that the library?"

"Yes. Why, of course, most girls have—have—can marry." The man was speaking eagerly now, but he still kept his face turned away and threw the words over his shoulder.

"Married! Wow! That's a very radical remedy. It might be worse than the other trouble. How many books are there in the library?"

EXCHANGE AT BROWNSVILLE TO BE BUILT AT ONCE.

Newark Independent Phone Company Secures the Contract for the Exchange of Business.

An important item of interest to residents of portions of southeastern Licking and western Muskingum counties developed Friday when Manager C. E. Hollander, of the Newark Independent Telephone company, announced that the Gratiot and Brownsville Telephone company had signed a contract for interchange of toll business. The Gratiot and Brownsville company was started by Messrs. Orr, Zartman and other citizens of the latter village, and it is proposed to connect Linnville, Brownsville, Gratiot, Mt. Sterling, White Cottage and other places by a fine telephone service, which will also give service to the farmers of that vicinity. Connections will also be made with Zanesville.

Work on the line from Newark to Brownsville will begin the first of next week and is expected to be completed in two or three weeks.

The securing of the contract by the Newark Telephone company was quite a stroke of business policy, as another company was in hot competition for the contract.

A score or more of farmhouses between Newark and Brownsville will be connected by the lines running between the two places.

THIRTEEN

HARD FOUGHT INNINGS PLAYED AT IDLEWILDE PARK.

Newark Boys Win First of Four Game Series From Urbana Four to Three.

Never before on the local diamond has there been a more exciting ball game than that played Thursday afternoon between the Idlewilde team and their old-time and doughty rivals, Urbana.

For two seasons these teams have been having a nip and tuck race for honors, but from the results of the last three games it would seem that the palm lies with Idlewilde. The game on Thursday was wildly exciting and was just the kind that keeps a crowd keyed up to the highest pitch, full of hard hitting, which sensational fielding would prevent the running up of a big score.

Stone, the man with an iron arm and an assortment of shots and curves, which few pitchers can boast, was in the box for Idlewilde and was in great form. When that is said it may be put down that the team he opposes is up against a tough proposition as far as scoring is concerned. This was true of Thursday's game and the runs scored by the visitors were pure gifts by the fielders. The trouble came in the seventh inning with men on second and third. A hot one was hit down to Snodgrass. He fielded the ball perfectly, but threw it over Farrell's head. Farrell got the ball and threw to second, the ball getting away from Wagner, and before it was all over three runs had been scored. This was all the visitors got, however, as Stone never wavered and with men on bases he was invincible. Newark scored one in the eighth, the score then being tied at 3 to 3. In the thirteenth, with Farrell, who was running for Scott, on third, Stone won his own game with a slashing single to left.

There were many fielding features in which nearly every member of both teams starred.

Umphre "By" Dickinson handled the indicator and his umpiring was of such a high order that it may be said there was practically not a kick registered on his decisions.

The same teams are playing this afternoon and will also play on Saturday and Sunday. Such baseball as the Idlewilde team has been playing deserves the patronage of every one in Newark who loves the game and appreciates the city.

Business Confidence in Judge Parker.

The prospect of a change in the administration of public affairs has evidently inspired a hopeful confidence in business circles. It is a matter worthy of note that since the action of the St. Louis convention business conditions of the country have sensibly improved. That the business interests of the United States lack confidence in Roosevelt has been an admitted fact for many months. For this reason there was a strong undercurrent in Republican circles against his nomination, and belief is prevalent on all sides that he would not have been nominated had the late Senator Hanna lived and permitted his name to be used as a candidate. The improved business outlook, therefore, is a manifestation of the confidence that the country's business interests have in Judge Parker, and he will continue to grow stronger every day among voters of all classes as the campaign progresses.

DAVIS FELL IN LOVE
WITH JUDGE PARKERCandidate Returns from Esopus Full of Admiration for Democratic Chief.

New York, July 22.—Ex-Senator Davis, accompanied by Norma E. Mack and Secretary Hendley, returned from Esopus last evening and went to the Fifth Avenue hotel looking as fresh as a daisy. Messrs. Mack and Hendley straggled along behind him, mopping the perspiration from their brows and seeming anxious to abandon the pace the West Virginian had set.

"I found Judge Parker to be an affable gentleman," said Mr. Davis. "He impressed me as a strong man. He comes up to evenining I have ever heard about him."

"Yes," said Mr. Mack, "the two candidates fell in love with each other on sight."

"That's right," Mr. Davis continued, "we did, and that just expresses my feelings for Judge Parker."

been sufficiently fostered by tariff duties so that it could compete on fair terms with foreign competitors the duties should be removed. This result, he thought, could be reached by gradual periodical reductions, and it is this policy which Governor Cummins favors, but which has been turned down by the majority of his party in his State and the Nation.

Roosevelt declares that Jefferson was a weak-minded demagogue and a blunderer as President. He will only admit that there has been three really great men Presidents. They are—Roosevelt, Lincoln and Washington—named in the order of their ability, he also questions the taste of inspiration in such phrases as "Lamb of God." "Ye are my sheep," etc., etc. He says "Why the early Christians admired it whether young or old, is always a profound mystery. The sheep herders are a narrow, melancholy set of men generally afoot, and with no company except that of the bleating idiots they are hired to guard."—Hunting trips of a Ranchman, by Theodore Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt told the miners' delegates who visited him to ask his good offices in the matter of the Colorado miners that the conditions in that State were being investigated by the agents of the department of commerce and labor, and if their report justified any action on his part he would make some move in the matter. These agents have quite a leisurely manner of proceeding about their work and it will not be surprising if their report in this case is not in shape for action until after the election.

EXPECT TO WIN.

(Philadelphia Record.)

Excellent prospects stimulate Democratic activity everywhere. Instead of the apathy that comes from hopelessness, there is manifested the energy of unwonted confidence. The national committee will start the campaign in a few days. The Democrats of the rural districts of New York are to be organized. Those of Wisconsin expect to carry their state. Those of Indiana are cheerful in spite of the fact that Senator Fairbanks' nomination will help the Republicans. Everywhere Democrats are going into the campaign promptly and expecting to win.

Folk Nominated.

There will be general rejoicing among the good citizens of all parties over the nomination of Joseph W. Folk for Governor of Missouri yesterday by the Democratic State convention. Mr. Folk's friends controlled the convention by a majority of nearly three to one, and at the close of the first ballot his nomination was made unanimous. Further than that the convention adopted a platform drawn by the nominee himself, which declared vigorous and unending warfare upon boodle politics in Missouri. Mr. Folk owed his success to the support which he received from the Democrats of the country districts, who rallied to him because of the magnificent record he made in fighting the St. Louis boulders. His candidacy ought to be endorsed by the Republican State convention, but if it is not he is certain to be elected by a large majority, swelled by the votes of many Republicans who believe more in securing honest government than partisan success.

OHIO CRACK SHOTS

Forty Two of the Best Marksmen are Shooting at the Newark Range Today for Positions on the State Team—Best Scores Made.

Only about sixty enlisted men and officers are now at the state encampment grounds, but they are the picked shooters of the state and the officers at headquarters. Never in the history of the O. N. G. rifle practice have there been so many to make high scores as have been done this year. At first it was the intention to permit those who had made a score of 100 out of 200 in the 200, 300, 500, and 600-yard matches to enter the 800, 900 and 1,000-yard matches, but the number of those who made the necessary 50 per cent was so large that only those who had 137 or over were permitted to contest for membership on the Ohio National Guard team consisting of 78 members.

Forty-two having the highest scores shot today for the honor of entering the national contest to be held at Sca Girt, N. J.

Those who are at the grounds together with the scores made in the four short ranges and mid-range matches are as follows: Capt. Charles Winder leading, and Sergeant C. E. Orr of Newark, ranking tenth. Capt. Charles Winder, 179; Lieut. C. S. Benedict, 172; J. E. Murray, 171; Lieut. J. C. Simon, 170; Lieut. W. H. Richardson, 170; Lieut. W. H. Richard, 170; H. E. 248,556, and the total expenditures $18,120,000. So far this fiscal year, therefore, the expenditures exceed the same period of the last fiscal year by close to $16,000,000.

It will be noticed that but a small part of the large increase in the deficit is due to a falling off in receipts for the month, the total income up to date this fiscal year being $28,729,719, as against $31,249,556 one year ago.

With a steady decreasing income and rapidly increasing expenditures there is promise for the coming fiscal year of a serious deficit in just the ordinary running expenses.

It is said that Secretary Shaw is by no means satisfied with the situation, and is confronted with the prospect of having to call on national bank depositaries of some of the money placed with them at a time when the Treasury had so much money it did not know what to do with it. The actual working balance of the Treasury—that is, the amount contained within the Treasury proper, was today less than $27,000,000—the lowest sum in seven years. It has for many years been a tradition of the Treasury that the actual working balance should not fall below $50,000,000.

That he might keep his balance somewhere near $50,000,000, Secretary Shaw a few months ago called upon national banks for Government funds on deposit with them, and collected altogether more than $50,000,000. Now that the balance is far below what it was two months ago, Secretary Shaw hesitates to make a call, because it will reveal to the people the fact that the Administration is every day running behind its income, and is steadily using up the surplus.

Washington, July 22.—On July 20, just twenty days after the present fiscal year and month had passed, the figures showed that the Government had expended $19,110,260 more than it had taken in and that the working balance in the Treasury had been reduced to less than $27,000,000.

The new fiscal year began July 1. The deficit of more than $10,000,000 with which the last year closed was declared by Republican leaders to be due wholly to the acquisition of the Panama Canal at an expense of $50,000,000 and to a loan of $4,000,000 to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. For the twenty days of the new fiscal year the expenditures have amounted to $47,840,000, and the receipts have been only $28,729,719. There have been no expenditures except those connected with the actual running expense incident to the operations of the Government and to extravagant appropriations.

There is on deposit with national banks about $111,064,476 belonging to the government, while in the Treasury proper there is less than $27,000,000 to meet the deficit that is daily piling up, and that is liable to continue to increase for six weeks before the receipts and expenditures reach anything like a daily balance.

If Secretary Shaw should call on the bankers they would quickly comprehend the situation when they ascertained that the Treasury was daily consuming its surplus in meeting the ordinary expenses of the Government, instead of depending upon its income. For political reasons there will be no call on the banks now, and the time-honored tradition about keeping at least $50,000,000 in the Treasury will be knocked silly by a Republican administration.

It is probable the actual working balance may get as low as $15,069,000 between now and September 1, but Secretary Shaw will, if possible, wait until after election to make a call on the banks. At the same time, he cannot disguise the enormous running expenses and the big deficit that is piling up.

THROUGH SLEEPERS

On the Trolley Line From Zanesville to Indianapolis Through Newark, Columbus and Dayton May Soon Be Running.

Mr. Joseph W. Selvage, general manager of the Holland Palace Car company of Indianapolis, was in Newark Thursday in consultation with General Manager J. R. Harrigan, of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark, and the Columbus, Newark and Zanesville Electric roads, relative to putting on a through sleeping car service between Zanesville and Indianapolis. This feature of interurban travel has never been installed in the United States, and it may be that the first sleeping car service in this country or in the world for that matter, will make its initial trip through Newark.

Mr. Selvage was here to consult with Manager Harrigan as to the practicability of the service in its details, and to get his ideas as to the advisability of establishing it on the lines under his control, before going to Boston to take it up with the Tucker-Anthon syndicate, the owners of these properties.

PATASKALA

Now Ships a Large Quantity of Milk to Columbus Daily—Outville Does Business Too.

Pataskala, O., July 22.—The milk industry has become an important one to people of this community. Several years ago, when a hundred thousand gallons marked the total of a year's shipment from Pataskala to Columbus, the amount was thought to be astonishing, but the volume of business has gradually increased to such proportions that at the present time the average daily shipment from Pataskala to Columbus is about 550 gallons, which would give a yearly aggregate of 200,750 gallons.

Notwithstanding the creamery at Outville, that place now ships to Columbus about 150 gallons of milk daily, or a total yearly output of 65,700 gallons.

OPERATION

Licking County Farmer Recovering Artificial Covering Placed Over His Brain by Surgeon.

Mt. Vernon, July 22.—Mr. James Bryan, the Bennington township, Licking county farmer, who has been a patient in the Larimore hospital for a number of weeks, departed Thursday for his home near Lock.

The story of the accident which came near causing Mr. Bryan's death is familiar to all Advocate readers. Fifty-three hours after he was injured an operation was performed on his head and it was found that there was a blood clot under the membrane covering the brain. The clot was removed and as there was a constant oozing of blood it was found necessary to pack the opening with gauze. As a result the wound was healing up without any covering for the brain. The patient was brought to Dr. Larimore's hospital, where a week ago Saturday another operation was performed, a carbide membrane, made out of the peritoneum of an ox, being placed over the brain as a covering. This is a substitute for the old silver plate formerly used in operations of this character.

The wound was closed and Mr. Bryan has now recovered, except that he is rather forgetful of proper names. This faculty is, however, gradually returning and it is thought that within a short time he will have fully recovered.

WOODMEN'S PICNIC

Five Thousand People Visited Buckeye Lake Thursday and Enjoyed the Splendid Program—Vast Crowds Handled by Traction Company Without a Single Mishap.

The annual picnic of the Modern Woodmen at Buckeye Lake Thursday, under the auspices of Cedar Camp 4727, of Newark, has gone into history as one of the most successful ever given under their direction.

Every circumstance combined to make the outing an enjoyable affair, even the weather for the most part being propitious. It is true that heavy clouds which threatened a downpour about noon, and a few showers about that time undoubtedly kept many from going, but at that, it is estimated that during the day five thousand people attended. The street car service returning to Newark was the same excellent service as earlier in the day in taking the crowds to the lake. Superintendent of Transportation F. A. Bontelle was indefatigable in his labors during the day. Until late in the afternoon he was in Newark, and every car left the interurban station under his directions supplementing the general train orders. From afternoon until the last car left at night Mr. Bontelle was at the lake and here again superintending the loading of the cars. It is a remarkable fact and speaks highly for Mr. J. R. Harrigan, the general manager, Mr. Bontelle and their subordinates, from train dispatchers to reporters and conductors, that not a single accident of any kind occurred during the entire day.

Manager W. D. Harris of Buckeye Lake Park and his assistant Mr. Otis Morris, has made excellent arrangements for the accommodation of the people, and every one was made to thoroughly enjoy themselves as far as the management of the park could make it possible.

The crowd was quiet, orderly and good natured. Not an accident marred the day's enjoyment. The dancing pavilion was the center of attraction during the afternoon and evening. Marsh's orchestra furnished the music while the floor managers in the afternoon were Neighbors Clarence Wilcox and Robert Swartz. In the evening the dancing was under the direction of Neighbors W. D. Fulton and Joe Miller, and on both occasions, although the floor was packed with dancers, all had a merry good time. Quite a number of the members of the Boys' Brigade, which is camping at Buckeye Lake, secured leave of absence and attended the Woodmen picnic. A few cases of colds have developed among the boys but the general health of the camp is most excellent and every one is enjoying himself. Some of the members of several social camping parties were also in attendance and all are reported well and having a good time.

The following is a complete program of the events:

For Fifty-seven Years This Woman Had Been an Inmate of the Perry County Infirmary.

Equally remarkable as her longevity was her activity. Until the last year she has been strong and active and frequently in high spirits, a second childhood, would sing and dance with a considerable degree of sprightliness.

THE RAILWAYS

B. & C. ISSUES A STATEMENT FOR THE FISCAL YEAR.

Figures Show the Year to Be Quite Profitable—President Murray Here —Railway Briefs.

New York, July 22.—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad has issued a financial statement for the fiscal year ending June 30, which shows that the year's work was quite profitable, although not equal to the preceding year, which was the best the company ever had.

Expenses were large during the winter, owing to the floods, the extremely low temperature and heavy snows, which made operation slow and expensive, besides which there was a decrease in the volume of tonnage.

The earnings for the fiscal year were $65,071,061, an increase of $1,600,000, but the expenses increased $4,040,296, leaving a decrease in net earnings from operations of $2,145,901.

The gross income (June being estimated) was $23,951,675, a decrease of $1,544,682. The deductions from income left $12,305,618 as net income applicable to dividends, which amounted to $7,490,000 for the year.

The report says: "The company enters upon this fiscal year with clean books and the operating expenses very well in hand. The decrease in business has been met with a reasonable decrease in working force, and it is expected with a revival of good traffic, conditions the results will be quite gratifying."

Pan Handle Earnings.

The gross earnings of the Panhandle for the month of June show a decrease of $118,613, but a decrease of $128,752 was made in the operating expenses, making an increase of $10,139 in the net earnings. For the six months ending June 30 the decrease in gross earnings was $262,684, which, with an increase in operating expenses made a decrease in the net earnings of $330,381 for the period.

A Treasured Image

[Original.]

Queen Bertha was dead, and King Carl, her husband, was plunged in deepest grief. It was weeks before the obsequies were ended. Then the king set about perpetuating his beloved wife's image in his heart. He called together the artists of his kingdom and told them whosoever would paint a portrait of his queen by which he could remember her as she was should be ennobled and an estate given him. Then he ordered that all the bachelors the queen had ever had painted be hung in a gallery, where competitors should have free access to them.

More than a hundred artists competed, and when all were ready their pictures were hung in a gallery by themselves and the king went in to examine them. He passed up on one side and down the other, shaking his head at the portraits.

"They have painted her as an old woman," he said. "Do they consider that my beautiful wife was an octogenarian? Take them away! I'll have none of them."

Some of the artists who had produced the best pictures, hearing the king's criticism, asked for another trial, which was granted. They softened the lines in the queen's face and made her look ten years younger than she had been at the time of her death. She had died at fifty and more of the pictures made her look over forty. The king was still dissatisfied, declaring that he would rather trust to his memory unaided than have it influenced by such likenesses. This discouraged the artists, and not even for the chance of a title and a fortune would any of them try again.

One day a young man sought an interview with the king, declaring that he had been sent from King Ortho, a neighboring monarch, to paint the dead queen's portrait. He claimed to be the royal portrait painter and an artist of skill. He demanded, on behalf of King Ortho, that if his portrait should be accepted the recompence should be the hand of King Carl's daughter, the Princess Lida, for King Ortho's son, the Crown Prince Ralph. A proposition with this marriage in view had been made before, but King Carl, whose kingdom was much more important than that of King Ortho, had declined. Now that all his own artists had failed, and thinking that what he asked was impossible, King Carl agreed to the terms.

The artist asked that he might have sittings of the Princess Lida, in order to catch any expression of her mother's she might have inherited. The request was granted, and every day the princess went into the gallery where the likenesses of the dead queen were hung. The artist copied from her features all he cared to copy, but in order to bring different expressions to her face he chatted with her incessantly, and she was so delighted with his conversation that every day she looked forward expectantly to the time for her sitting. Long before the picture was completed she wished that the prize if won might be given to the artist rather than the crown prince.

Finally the artist announced that his portrait was ready for the king's inspection. Since this was an affair of state King Carl summoned his ministers to attend him, and with great ceremony the royal party swept into the apartment where the picture rested on an easel. The moment the ministers' eyes rested on the portrait they looked at each other in astonishment. They saw the queen not as a woman of fifty or of forty, but at twenty. Some said it was the Princess Lida and not the queen at all. Nevertheless all maintained silence till the king had spoken.

When the artist departed from the kingdom the princess wept bitterly, that he had not won the prize for himself instead of for his sovereign. He pressed her hand at parting and assured her that she would find the prince a loving husband.

When Prince Ralph came in state to the nuptials he arrived in the night and went at once with his suite to his apartments. The next morning King Carl and the princess awaited him in the audience chamber with all the court assembled to receive him. When the door opened and he entered there was a hum of surprise. He was the artist who had painted the winning picture.

Of course the princess was happy and the king was especially happy in having for a son-in-law one who had enabled him to keep his wife's image in his memory. As for the prince, he had in disguise competed for the prize, had fallen in love with the princess and learned that the king was treasuring in his heart the image of his wife as it was when he had first loved her. He resolved to get as near that image as possible by using portraits of the queen in youth, blended with the living image of his daughter.

Not long after the wedding King Ortho died and Prince Ralph succeeded to the throne. Then King Carl shut himself up with his portrait that so pleased him and dedicated it in favor of King Ralph and his wife.

The artist asked that he might have sittings of the Princess Lida, in order to catch any expression of her mother's she might have inherited. The request was granted, and every day the princess went into the gallery where the likenesses of the dead queen were hung. The artist copied from her features all he cared to copy, but in order to bring different expressions to her face he chatted with her incessantly, and she was so delighted with his conversation that every day she looked forward expectantly to the time for her sitting. Long before the picture was completed she wished that the prize if won might be given to the artist rather than the crown prince.

Finally the artist announced that his portrait was ready for the king's inspection. Since this was an affair of state King Carl summoned his ministers to attend him, and with great ceremony the royal party swept into the apartment where the picture rested on an easel. The moment the ministers' eyes rested on the portrait they looked at each other in astonishment. They saw the queen not as a woman of fifty or of forty, but at twenty. Some said it was the Princess Lida and not the queen at all. Nevertheless all maintained silence till the king had spoken.

When the artist departed from the kingdom the princess wept bitterly, that he had not won the prize for himself instead of for his sovereign. He pressed her hand at parting and assured her that she would find the prince a loving husband.

When Prince Ralph came in state to the nuptials he arrived in the night and went at once with his suite to his apartments. The next morning King Carl and the princess awaited him in the audience chamber with all the court assembled to receive him. When the door opened and he entered there was a hum of surprise. He was the artist who had painted the winning picture.

Of course the princess was happy and the king was especially happy in having for a son-in-law one who had enabled him to keep his wife's image in his memory. As for the prince, he had in disguise competed for the prize, had fallen in love with the princess and learned that the king was treasuring in his heart the image of his wife as it was when he had first loved her. He resolved to get as near that image as possible by using portraits of the queen in youth, blended with the living image of his daughter.

Not long after the wedding King Ortho died and Prince Ralph succeeded to the throne. Then King Carl shut himself up with his portrait that so pleased him and dedicated it in favor of King Ralph and his wife.

MINOT LEDGE LIGHT.

The Historic Storm Which Destroyed the Original Structure.

The lighthouse on Minot's ledge stands within the shadow of a tragedy. It is the second structure erected upon the ledge. The first lighthouse and the lives it held were claimed by the sea. Begun in 1847 and completed in November, 1848, it was overwhelmed in April, 1851. Its destruction was the most tragic event in the history of our lighthouse establishment. The structure was an octagonal tower supported upon wrought iron piles strengthened by braces. The piles penetrated five feet into the rock. On the braces, thirty-four and a half feet above the rock, the keeper had constructed a platform for the storage of bulky articles and had fastened to the lantern deck, sixty-three feet above the rock, a five and a half inch hawser, which he had anchored to a seven ton granite block. Along this hawser articles were hoisted up to the platform and there landed. These improvements were convenient and fatal, not however, to the keeper who made them, for he was on shore when the storm which has become historic for its fury burst over the coast.

On Monday, April 14, 1851, there was a strong easterly gale blowing. At that time there were on the tower two assistant keepers and a friend of the principal keeper. The visitor became frightened at the first indication of a storm, and in response to a signal from the tower a boat put off for Cohasset and took him ashore. On Tuesday the wind swung around to the northeast, the most dangerous quarter from which the elements can hurl themselves upon Minot's, as they then rejoice in the accumulated fury of miles of wind torn sea. By the 16th it had increased to a hurricane, and the tower was so completely buried in the heavy seas that nothing of it could be seen by the group of anxious watchers at Cohasset.

About 4 o'clock in the evening of the 16th the platform was washed ashore. Then the watchers knew that the water had risen to within seven feet of the tower. At midnight it was seen that the light was burning. It was observed at fitful intervals until 10 o'clock that night, when it finally lost to sight. At 1 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, April 17, just at the turn of the flood, when the outstreaming tide and the surging hurricane met at Minot's, a violent tolling of the lighthouse bell was heard. After no sound rose above the din of the storm. About 6 o'clock in the morning a man walking along the shore saw a chair washed up a little distance ahead of him. Examining it, he recognized it as having been in the watch room of the tower. After this discovery no one had any doubts of the tragedy which had been enacted behind the curtain of the storm. When it lifted naught was seen over Minot's ledge but the sea, its white crests streaming triumphantly in the gale.

It is believed by those competent to judge of such matters that the destruction of the tower was due to the surface which the platform constructed by the keeper offered to the waves and to the strain of the hawser upon the structure. Every time this hawser was struck by a sea it actually tugged at the tower. There seems also little doubt that the sum appropriated by congress for the building of the lighthouse was insufficient by about two-thirds for such a structure as the perilous situation called for.—Century.

Playing Cards.

The invention of playing cards has been attributed to the Chinese, Hindoos, Arabians and Romans, but cards as now used were invented by Jacques Guingoune, a painter, in Paris in the fourteenth century. They were supposed to have been first made for the amusement of Charles VI. of France, who was deranged. The French had particular names for the twelve court cards. The four kings were David, Alexander, Caesar and Charles; the four queens, Angine, Esther, Judith and Pallas; the four knaves, or knights, Ogier the Dane, Lancelot, La Hire and Hector de Garland. Cards seem originally, however, to have been taken to England direct from Spain, having probably been introduced into that country by the Moors; the clubs in Spanish cards not being trefoils, as with us, but cudgels—that is, bastos—the spades, or swords, espadas. They were at first stamped from wood blocks in outline and filled in by hand, but after the invention of engraving the best artists engraved them on copper and struck them off at once. Columbines were spades; rabbits, clubs; pinks, diamonds, and roses, hearts. Human figures opposed to those of flowers and animals were the ancestors of court cards.

The Chimney Swift.

One of the popular errors concerning the chimney swift is the belief that it is a swallow, and it is called the chimney swallow by nine-tenths of the people. As a matter of fact, however, it is not even closely related to the swallows, being much more nearly akin to the humming birds and the goat-suckers. Like birds of the latter class, swifts feed on insects which they capture on the wing. Their powers of flight are marvelous, while on foot they are practically helpless. Their wings have been developed to a wonderful degree, but their feet, through disuse, have become weak and quite useless for purposes of locomotion. Their toe nails are sharp, however, and enable them to cling securely to the inside of a chimney, and when, for any reason, a nest gives way and falls down, as it often does, the young birds, if not too small, scramble up to the top of the chimney to be fed by their parents until they are able to shift for themselves.—Washington Star.

It Was His.

A small boy in a town not far from New York was telling his mother of a mishap which had occurred to a playmate of his. The youngster, it appeared, had been regaling himself with one of those large, marble-like candies which are a particular delight of childhood, and in a moment of excitement it slipped down and stuck in his throat. But, said the narrator, they succeeded in relieving him.

"Oh," said his mother, "you got it out, did you?"

"Naw," was the impatient answer. "We shoved it down. It was his, wasn't it?"—Harper's Weekly.

NOMINEES OF THE PROHIBITIONISTS, POPULISTS AND SOCIALISTS.

"The Fighting Person" of Pennsylvania Who Leads the Prohibitionists—An Incident in the Career of Thomas E. Watson.

Besides the presidential tickets of the Republican and Democratic parties there are now in the field those of the Prohibition, Socialist and People's parties. Each of these minor parties has named to head its ticket a man conspicuously identified with its policy.

The nominees of the Prohibition party for president, Rev. Dr. Silas Comfort Swallow of Pennsylvania, is a Methodist clergyman prominent in his denomination. He was born at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in 1829, is the editor of the Pennsylvania Methodist and won attention as a reformer through attacking in his paper alleged abuses in the state government. In 1897 he was nominated for state treasurer of Pennsylvania and in 1898 for governor, receiving 132,000 votes for that office.

Dr. Swallow has been known for some years as "the fighting person." Even when he was a very young man he showed that he had not only ideas

CHOICE MISCELLANY

The Centenary of a Duel.

One hundred years ago the 11th of July occurred the historic duel by which Alexander Hamilton, the brilliant statesman, lost his life at the hands of the erratic, ambitious and designing Burr. One hundred years after that sad event, which Americans have never ceased to deplore, it is interesting to find the city of New York buying the old Jumel mansion, at which both Hamilton and Burr were favored guests, that it may be preserved as one of the three pre-revolutionary landmarks remaining on Manhattan Island.

At this mansion, which stands in bold prominence upon the heights overlooking the Harlem river at One Hundred and Sixtieth street, Burr lived after he married the Widow Jumel. His days there, however, were but another pathetic chapter in the life of a brilliant man who permitted his evil instincts to master and control his career.

The hundred years that have intervened since the Weehawken duel have only tended to quicken the world's appreciation of the abilities of the gifted West Indian, while time has not in any degree dispelled the odium which shrouded the life and public services of Aaron Burr.—Four Truck News.

Microbes of Old Age.

In a lecture on old age, delivered by Dr. Menchukoff, the speaker expressed the opinion that senility was produced by certain physiological states which cause the beneficial species of microbes called macrophages to increase too rapidly. Then in their turn they become injurious.

These parasites flourish in the large intestine which mammals possess, whereas in birds they are almost entirely lacking. The result was shown in the person of the doctor's own dog, which was decrepit at eighteen, while the doctor's parrot, aged seventy, appeared to the audience healthy and lively.

"It stands proved," said the doctor, "that senility is an infectious disease, and it should be possible to treat it like other maladies, to cure it or prevent it."

The hope was expressed by Dr. Menchukoff that a serum would shortly be discovered to counteract the macrophages and prolong human life; meantime, says the Figaro, he recommended the consumption of curdled milk.—Paris Dispatch to London Mail.

Clothing as Physical Records.

An excellent illustration of the value of records has been afforded lately regarding the question of physical degeneracy. A firm in the north of England has compared the measurements for clothing made two generations ago with those of today, the results going to show that chest and hip measurements are now three inches on the average more than they were sixty years ago. This same conclusion is reached by the experience of the ready made clothiers. These facts, whatever may be their generality, do not quite dispose of the question of degeneracy. They are what we should expect from the more abundant and cheaper food of the people, their better housing and improved sanitary surroundings, but the testimony regarding the unfitness of recruits and progressive lack of stamina in town and especially manufacturing populations cannot be disregarded.—London Telegraph.

Thomas Edward Watson, nominee of the People's party for president, was born in Columbia county, Ga., Sept. 5, 1856. He contended with poverty in obtaining an education, was admitted to the bar and made a small fortune in practice of law. He was sent to the Georgia legislature for several terms and afterward to congress.

Watson was in 1890, and he was elected as a Democrat, but joined the Farmers' alliance movement, a course that brought him into conflict with his colleagues of Democratic faith in the house of representatives. It was in this connection that he Mounting a stump near by he began to sing. He had a congregation of two for prayer. Curiosity brought his enemies from the woods where they were watching him, and by sermon time he had the largest audience to which he had ever preached in that vicinity. He made no reference to the locking of the church, but gave his hearers a strong sermon on support of the government, and his many constituents won the day.

THE GAME OF POKER

IT SEEMS TO HAVE ORIGINATED IN NEW ORLEANS.

The American Version of the Game is Apparently an Improvement on the Old French Game "Le Jeu du Pique" or German "Pochespiel."

All the evidence about poker which has come to light points to its origin in New Orleans. The question is, Where did New Orleans get it from, or is it an improvement on some game known to the population of that city, who, it must be remembered, were French and used French terms in any games that they played?

There is no French game played with only twenty cards, as poker was played at New Orleans in 1832, but there are several French games in which all the poker hands are to be found except four of a kind. Ambigu, brelan and many others will at once suggest themselves.

But all these French games are played with three cards only in the hand of each player. Where could the inventor of poker have found a game played with five cards in each hand and the pack consisting of twenty cards only?

The standard pack of cards in Europe from the earliest days has been what is now called the piquet pack, which is the same as our American euchre pack, thirty-two cards. There is only one country in the world that uses a pack limited to twenty cards, and that is Persia. There is only one country in the world where poker has always been played with five cards in the hand of each player, and that is Persia, but the game is not called poker. It is called as has.

Those who are familiar with this ancient Persian game instinctively assert some Frenchman must have brought it to New Orleans in its primitive form, with the pack limited to twenty cards and the hand of each player increased to five. The question still remains, How did it change its name?

The old Persian pack had no aces, court cards and spots, like ours, but each suit was made up of pictures which were ranked: Lion, king, lady, soldier and dancing girl. This pack was called varak 1 as, varak 1 as or simply as, from the game as or asards, which was played with it. This ancient game was simply twenty card poker, as it was first played in America at the beginning of this century.

But if poker was originally known as asards, how came it to lose that name? It seemed to the writer, and also to Mr. Jessel, that the answer to this question must be looked for in the language of the people who brought the game from Europe, if they did bring it.

If they brought it to New Orleans from Persia, or if some resident of that city was familiar with the Persian game and thought it an improvement on the French game of ambigu and brelan, the introducer was probably French and more familiar with French games and French terms than with Persian.

Curiously enough, one of the oldest and most authoritative works on card games was published in France and ran through a great many editions. This is the famous "Academie Universelle des Jeux; Chez Theodore Legras, au Palais," Paris.

The game of poque continues to be described until the edition of 1702, with no mention of any improvement or change in its form. In 1733, however, page 305, we find a description of le jeu du poque, which exactly agrees with the game known to all German children as pochespiel or pochen. The "Academie des Jeux" speaks of poque as a descendant or offshoot from the older game of hoc.

The peculiarity of poque is that after the cards are dealt and each player has taken from the common pool the counter for the rank of the highest cards held he is at liberty to bet upon the various combinations of cards he holds, triplets, pairs, etc. In the French description of the game we are told that a player opened the betting by saying, "Je poque d'un jeton," or two chips, or as many as he pleased, and that then the others could see him, raise him or drop out in their turn.

In the German game poche as it is played today we find exactly the same expressions still in use, "Ich poche eins," or as many chips as the player cares to venture, and the answer of the player
